(b)(6)

Dear Joanna:

I am deeply saddened by the loss of your husband, Second Lieutenant John T. Wroblewski, USMC.

John's noble service in Operation Iraqi Freedom has helped to preserve the security of our homeland and the freedoms America holds dear. Our Nation will not forget John's sacrifice and unselfish dedication in our efforts to make the world more peaceful and more free. We will forever honor his memory.

Laura and I send our heartfelt sympathy. We hope you will be comforted by your faith and the love and support of your family and friends. May God bless you.

Sincerely,

George W. Bush

Just wanted to give you a heads up. We received a letter via mail from the wroblewski family thanking the president from the last time the visited the white house.

As I was doing research I found they are meeting with potus on tuesday, june 12th. Since they are meeting so soon we are not going to prepare a letter. I will send the letter over in the reading file so if you all want potus can see it before the see each other again.

Let me know if you would like me to do anythig else with the letter.

Thanks,
Matt

Here is the text of the letter sent in May. This is after the family met with POTUS in the Oval on April 16th.

May 8, 2007

Mr. and Mrs. John Wroblewski

(b)(6)

Dear Shawn and John:

I was honored to see you again at the White House. Thank you for your time.

You have shown tremendous courage in the face of terrible loss and grief. Our Nation is grateful for your family's service and sacrifice in defense of America's freedom and security, and I am proud to have been J.T.'s Commander in Chief.

I look forward to meeting the rest of your family in June. May God bless you.

Sincerely,

George W. Bush

John Thomas Wroblewski

Second Lieutenant, United States Marine Corps

IMMEDIATE RELEASE April 8, 2004
DoD Identifies Marine Casualty

The Department of Defense announced today the death of a Marine who was supporting Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Second Lieutenant John T. Wroblewski, 25, of Oak Ridge, New Jersey, died April 6, 2004, due to injuries received from hostile fire in Al Anbar Province, Iraq. He was assigned to 2nd Battalion, 4th Marines, 1st Marine Division, I Marine Expeditionary Force, Camp Pendleton, California.

For further information related to this release, contact the Marine Corps Base Camp Pendleton Public Affairs Office at (760) 725-5044.

Shawn and John Wroblewski mourn the loss of their oldest son, Marine Ltieuenant John Thomas "J.T.," as they remember him on the deck behind their Jefferson home on Thursday. Dawn Benko / Daily Record

JEFFERSON -- Some of the Marines he commanded and admired were with Marine Lieutenant John Thomas "J.T." Wroblewski when he died of his battle wounds on Wednesday in a hospital in Iraq, his parents said.

Mourning friends and relatives of Wroblewski, 25, the first Morris County soldier to die in Iraq, were drawing comfort from the realization that his fellow Marines had supported him and from the knowledge that he died doing what he loved.

Dear Joanna:

I am deeply saddened by the loss of your husband, Second Lieutenant John T. Wroblewski, USMC.

John's noble service in Operation Iraqi Freedom has helped to preserve the security of our homeland and the freedoms America holds dear. Our Nation will not forget John's sacrifice and unselfish dedication in our efforts to make the world more peaceful and more free. We will forever honor his memory.

Laura and I send our heartfelt sympathy. We hope you will be comforted by your faith and the love and support of your family and friends. May God bless you.

Sgt. Michael Carlson: Son, Brother, Friend, Patriot & American Hero

United States Army Sergeant Michael Carlson, 22, died on January 24, 2005, in Mohammed Sacran, Iraq, when his Bradley fighting vehicle overturned. On May 11, 2000, while a senior in high school, Mike wrote an incredible essay. The Wall Street Journal published Mike's essay on May 23, 2005, in which he said:

> "I want to live forever; the only way that one could possibly achieve it in this day and age is to live on in those you have affected. I want to carve out a niche for myself in the history books. I want to be remembered for the things I accomplished."

Mike will live on after his death with God and in the memory of the United States people. He affected me and I am sure he has affected and will affect others.

Mike is now a part of the history of the long grey line of the United States military. Sgt. Carlson and his contemporary brothers in arms have accomplished something historical that will not soon be forgotten. He and his comrades freed 50 million people in Iraq and Afghanistan, a feat that has never been accomplished in the history of mankind. Freedom for those countries has come at a great price with the blood and sacrifices of brave Americans like Michael Carlson.

The United States is a great country because of men and women like Mike Carlson. I sometimes ask myself, how is it possible that our country can produce people like Mike, Sgt. Bud Clay and Pat Tillman? It is one thing to fight and die in your homeland when it is being attacked by an enemy, but to travel half way around the world to risk your life and possibly die for the people of another country you do not know is something done only by the noblest of men.

General Douglas MacArthur, in his "Duty, Honor, Country" speech given to the West Point corps of cadets on May 12, 1962, had this to say about soldiers of the United States Army like Mike:

> "Duty, Honor, Country — those three hallowed words reverently dictate what you want to be, what you can be, what you will be. They are your rallying point to build courage when courage seems to fail, to regain faith when there seems to be little cause for faith, to create hope when hope becomes forlorn. . . . I regard [the U.S. soldier] now, as one of the world's noblest figures; not only as one of the finest military characters, but also as one of the most stainless. His name and fame are the birthright of every American citizen. In his youth and strength, his love and loyalty, he gave all that mortality can give. . . . They died unquestioning, uncomplaining, with faith in their hearts, and on their lips the hope that we would go on to victory. Always for them: Duty, Honor, Country. Always their blood, and sweat, and tears, as they saw the way and the light."

Michael Carlson's Credo Paper

I was born in Wisconsin. We lived in a town called Webster, on a road called Lavern Lane. Since then many things have changed, but many more remain the same. We no longer live in the country, we only go to church once or twice a year, and we no longer struggle to make ends meet. Today we live in the city, but we still have a Junk Yard, my dad still works 16 hours a day, everyday. Today I am a man not a seven-year-old child. There are still cars everywhere. We own over 90. About 20 of them still run and 12 of those we store in the city. No we don't have a parking lot. What we do is borrow our neighbors unused stalls for fixing their cars and doing other little things for them.

I admire my Father more than any other person on this planet, not for being a mechanic, not for being a tough guy. I admire my father for his ambition. For 30 years he has gone to work everyday, for 30 years he has come home, gone to the garage and worked 10 more hours. I don't know how he does it but I do know why. He does it for us. He wants my brother and me to have everything we need and most of what we want. Lots of people say that the best way to learn is by the example of others. Well, then I have one of the best teachers there is on how to be a man, how to treat others, and the work ethic. I mean he is not perfect by any means but is anyone really perfect! I think that he is pretty close.

Sometimes I wonder if my dad ever thought of college. I wonder if he's happy. I sometimes even feel sorry for him. What I mean by that is that I look at him and see a guy that has spent his entire life working. That is what he does. He works. If my mom never brought up the idea of a vacation he would never think twice. He would work to the day he died. I love hard work, but how do you go to the same dead end job everyday knowing that you will be doing it forever.

Every now and then someone that had my dad fix their car will stop by and need something, and every time I talk to them they start talking about my dad's work. They compliment him on paint jobs he did 20 years ago that still look like they are brand new. That reminds me of another trait I have taken from my dad besides my hard work ethic. "If you are going to do a job, do it right the first time, because a job not done well is a job not worth doing," so the saying goes. I take that personally. If someone has an honest complaint about my workmanship, I will bend over backwards to make it right. If people are going to pay you good money to do something then you had better do a darn good job. That is why I usually work alone, then, if there is a problem I know whom I can blame.

My dad hasn't taught me everything though, a lot of it I have learned on my own too. I still got a lot to learn still, but I have figured out things like how to deal with people you don't like or those that don't like you. I also learned why when cutting a frozen bagel you cut away from yourself, I got the scar to prove it. My dad calls this type of learning "the school of hard knocks." Some of the knocks are harder than others.

I love sports. I love football, wrestling, weight lifting, skiing and hockey. I love the thrill of competition, the roar of the crowds, the agony on the faces of your opponents as the final seconds tick off the clock. However, I don't want to do it as a profession. I think it would be fun for a while then it would get boring. I guess the point that I am trying to make is that when I am on my deathbed what am I going to look back on? Will it be 30 years of playing a game that in reality means nothing, or will it be 30 years of fighting crime and protecting the country from all enemies, foreign and domestic.

I want my life to account for something more than just a game. In life there are no winners, everyone eventually loses their life. I only have so much time; I can't waste it with a game. I don't want those close to me to look at me and tell me that I was good at a game. I want to be good at life; I want to be known as the best of the best at my job. I want people to need me, to count on me. I am never late; I am either on time or early. I want to help people. I want to fight for something, be part of something that is greater than myself. I want to be a soldier or something of that caliber, maybe a cop or a secret service agent.

I want to live forever; the only way that one could possibly achieve it in this day and age is to live on in those you have affected. I want to carve out a niche for myself in the history books. I want to be remembered for the things I accomplished. I sometimes dream of being a soldier in a war. In this war I am helping to liberate people from oppression. In the end there is a big parade and a monument built to immortalize us in stone. Other times I envision being a man you see out of the corner of your eye, dressed in black fatigues, entering a building full of terrorists. After everything is completed I slip out the back only to repeat this the next time I am called. I might not be remembered in that scenario, but I will have helped people.

I guess what I want most of all is to be a part of the real world, not an entertainer. I want to have an essential role in the big picture. I want adventure, challenge, danger, and most of all I don't want to be behind a counter or desk. Maybe when I am a 100 years old I will slow down and relax. Till then, I have better things to do.

Like son, mother makes difference

December 18, 2005
St. Paul (Minn.) Pioneer Press

By JOE SOUCHERAY

The Carlsons, Daniel and Merrilee and two sons, Daniel and Michael, moved from the East Side of St. Paul to summer of 2004. Michael was not available to haul furniture or put the washing machine on his back which he capable of as he was at the time Sgt. Michael Carlson of the United States Army, serving in Iraq and loving it, the mission.

Carlson, 22, was among four soldiers who died when their Bradley Fighting Vehicle rolled over in a canal in th Mohammed Sacran. That was Jan. 24 of this year. He had three weeks left in the country. Carlson became th St. Paul to die in the war in Iraq.

During the move from St. Paul to Hastings, there being no Michael around to help, his older brother scooped u Michael's room, including school papers, among them a credo written during Michael's senior year at Cretin-D three-page paper was posted by the Wall Street Journal on Memorial Day. It is worth looking for.

In part, the paper read: "I sometimes dream of being a soldier in a war. In this war, I'm helping to liberate peop

That was written in the spring of 2000. That was written before Sept. 11, 2001; Carlson was at his final inspec Sept. 11, 2001.

Where did that come from?

"We don't know," Merrilee Carlson said the other day. "This young man truly loved his country."

But in high school he was not even in ROTC, which his school offers. He was a football player, a good one, a fellow well met. He was called "Shrek," for his size and his affability. He was remembered well by his teachers buddies.

But where did that come from, that abiding call to serve?

"Plus," Merrilee said, "he loved being a grunt. He was uncomfortable being a leader. I think it unnerved him wl sergeant."

Merrilee Carlson was at her job with National Oilwell Varco, where she is the engineering administrative servic National Oilwell Varco has a laying on of hands all the way back to American Hoist & Derrick.

"We design off-shore oil rigs and cranes," Merrilee said.

This woman, this mother of the first soldier from St. Paul killed in Iraq, has not been getting quite the media atl been given to, say, Cindy Sheehan, whose theatrical gullibility has been taken advantage of by an obsequious television newshounds.

"Cindy Sheehan has driven me to be vocal," Carlson said. "We can't leave this work undone in Iraq. We can a we might have gotten there. But we're there and we need to see it through. Michael died while en route to take been told was a bomb-making facility. This was during Iraq's first attempt at the election. He would have been see 80 percent of the eligible voters turn out to vote in the election this week."

If not Cindy Sheehan specifically, it has been pessimism in general that has compelled Merrilee Carlson to sp cheerfully of her son. After all, he was her son. It is not conceivable to her that there are mothers of dead soldi the United States to cut and run.

"I suppose we could have taken the beaches at Normandy," Merrilee said, "and then decided it was too expen to keep going. I wonder what the world would look like today."

As a Gold Star mother, the mother of a soldier who died in Iraq, Merrilee has joined Families United for Our Tr Mission. They have a Web site, www.unitedforourtroops.com.

The other night she showed up on talk radio. She will take care to see that Gold Star families interact with Blu those with soldiers active in Iraq.

"I cannot let the value of these great young people get discredited," Merrilee said. "These are just great Ameri believe they are serving their country in the best possible way."

Michael Carlson was buried at Arlington National Cemetery near Washington, a long way from Spooner, Wis., and the East Side, where he grew up.

"Michael always wanted to go to Washington," Merrilee said. "In his last letter to his fianc e he told her that the Washington. He got there. He got there the hard way, but that's where he wanted to be."

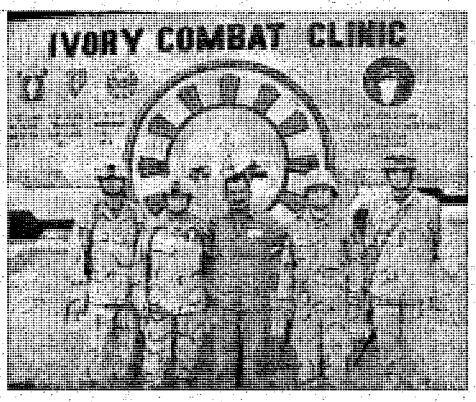
Today's The Times, Trenton, obituaries



In the extreme battlefield conditions, including 135 degree heat, Craig suffered a stroke and was transported to Germany, where his father made the difficult decision to remove his life support. Craig had been planning to follow in his father's footsteps as a physician's assistant after his military career.

Craig's father said Craig had a movie quote that he favored as a sort of motto: "What we do in life echoes through eternity." For Craig, that has especially rung true beginning with his family donating a memorial to his high school and establishing a $1,000 annual scholarship fund in Craig's memory for members of the military medics wanting to pursue a career as a physician's assistant.

Craig received posthumous honors from his comrades. He was awarded the Army Commendation Medal and the Bronze Star. The clinic he worked at in Kirkuk was named the Ivory Combat Clinic (pictured lower left) to honor him. Then his former staff sergeant wrote and published a memoir which featured a chapter devoted to Craig's story.

He is survived by his parents as well as a sister and two brothers, including Sean, who is an Army Reservist.

Patrick Ivory explains that he felt compelled to join Families United after an incident with a reporter. He claims the reporter spun his words and characterized his sentiments inaccurately to serve their agenda. "The media only reports the negative and the sensational. The positive information is never shared with America."

Importance: High

Sean Ivory is the brother of SPC Craig S. Ivory, USA, who was KIA in Iraq in 2003. The President met with the Ivorys at the White House recently, and this is the follow-up note. The Oval Office noticed that Sean is an Army Reservist, and they would like us to address him by his rank and branch.

Would it be at all possible to track this information down by Monday morning?

Thanks so much. My cell phone # is (b)(6).

Mr. Sean Ivory

Port Matilda, Pennsylvania

Dear Sean:

I was honored to meet with you at the White House.

Craig was a man of great courage. He willingly risked his life to protect our Nation and advance the cause of freedom, and I am proud to have been his Commander in Chief.

May God bless you.

Sincerely,

George W. Bush
